FOURTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

31 JANUARY / 1 FEBRUARY 2026

Fr. James writes...

As I had shared with many at Mass the weekend before last, Fr Tom's mum, Muriel was coming to stay with us. She no longer felt safe at home alone. She was struggling with Alzheimer's and her health was deteriorating. Fr Tom and I knew this was the right thing to do. Reaching out, fourteen parishioners kindly offered to come and help Fr Tom with caring for his mum. The outpouring of this spontaneous love touched his heart. Having Tom's mum in the house made our presbytery feel more like a home. Though suffering, Muriel continued to love and allow Tom to love and look after her. On Friday morning, I popped into see her whilst she was watching the news. I asked her if she wanted me to turn the news off as it was depressing. She said to me, I need to know who to pray for. Muriel's heart was the Lord's and for care of others. That Friday evening over supper, we read a chapter of a book which she had written after her daughter died. Those words she had written many years ago, she affirmed as truth that night. I share her writings below. On Saturday Muriel became very weak. I anointed her. Tom and his brother, Robin were on each side of her bed as she peacefully slipped away. Please keep Muriel in your prayers and Fr Tom, Robin, his brother and their family. I thank God for his love for each of us and for our kind and caring community.

Trailing Clouds of Glory

*Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting;
The soul that rises with us, our life's star
Hath had elsewhere its setting
And cometh from afar:
Not in entire forgetfulness
And not in utter nakedness
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home.*

*'Imitations of Immortality'
By William Wordsworth*

These lines express what for me is an intuitive belief, which is that even before our human birth, we were with God, and to Him, we will return. It matters not to me that academics have interpreted Wordsworth's poem in a more complex way. The poem itself worried some Christians when it appeared. They were concerned that Wordsworth was expressing a belief in reincarnation, as suggested in the writings of Plato.

I prefer to exercise my right as a reader to take these beautiful words for what they say to me, I understand them as being a celebration of the heavenly origins and heavenly destination of human life. Who can look at a newborn baby and not see some other worldly wisdom in that peculiarly elderly little face? What a touch of genius to use the word 'trailing'.

It suggests utter unselfconsciousness, as when we walk into the house from the garden, unaware that a few leaves or burs are sticking to the hem of our coat. Toddlers leave a trail behind them, especially when they're learning to walk. A dropped Teddy here, a plastic beaker there. We know where they've come from and can follow their trail. What is that sense of awe and reverence we experience as we approach the crib of a new baby but an awareness that we are treading on holy ground?

Even before I was knitted together in my mother's womb, God had me in his heart. I was there from all eternity, safe in his presence. No wonder the world seems a bewildering place at times. No wonder we feel a homesickness, a sense of melancholy. This is only our temporary home where, for a while, we pitch our tent. It's only part of our story and, of that, neither the beginning nor the end.

Dear Lord, when I am afraid of death, when even the idea of eternity seems, at best, incomprehensible and, at worst alarming, help me to remember that You have made me for the sole purpose of coming back to You, and that I will not be a stranger in Your kingdom but a child back in my Father's house.

News from St. Peter's School

Richard Cunningham, Headteacher, writes... In the first three weeks of the spring term, pupils at St Peter's have been very busy across the wider curriculum. In the Reception Year the children were very excited to welcome visitors including a doctor, nurse, veterinary nurse and paramedic into the classrooms. They asked some fantastic questions and showed great curiosity about the important work these professionals do.

Year 3 have started a new music topic on samba. The pupils have learnt about where samba music comes from and what instruments they will be using over the term to learn how to play samba music. The children have already had the opportunity to play some beats on the instruments and can't wait for what they will learn next.

Year 5 were visited by Katy Sexton MBE, a former Olympic swimmer for Team GB. Katy spoke about her achievements in swimming and how she got into the sport. She then spoke to the pupils about water safety ready for their class swimming sessions to begin. Katy showed the classes what to do if they find someone struggling in the water, and what to do if they ever found themselves in trouble in open water. Thank you to the St Peter's staff for organising these great learning opportunities, and to the visitors who give of their time and expertise to teach our children.
