ALL SAINTS

SUNDAY 1 NOVEMBER 2026

Fr. Andrew writes…

Anamnesis and Prolepsis

The Book of Revelation is a window into Heaven; through this window, the Apostle John saw the heavenly liturgy being celebrated, in eternity, outside of time and space. In the first reading for this Sunday's feast of All Saints, John writes about those participating in the liturgy: "a great multitude that no one could number, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with palm branches in their hands" who all lifted their voices in praise. Their white robes signify the Baptism by which we are consecrated for worship. These Saints fulfil this consecration as they join in the eternal worship of heaven. But they also carry palm branches, the sign of martyrdom. While there were many martyrs in the early Church, John does not mean to suggest that only those killed for the faith will enter heaven. Rather, he is showing us that the authentic Christian life entails suffering and sacrifice. These Saints have got to heaven not just by giving notional assent to a jumble of Christian ideas, but by putting the Faith into practice. Practising the Faith is not just about avoiding bad choices: sometimes it demands that we choose the Faith even over some good opportunities. This is real sacrifice, worthy of the palm branch in heaven. This is why Jesus begins his teaching in the Gospel today by telling us: "Blessed are the poor in spirit."

The liturgy we celebrate here on earth – the Mass, the Eucharist – is a mirror of the eternal liturgy of Heaven. Dr Scott Hahn, a Protestant academic who converted to Catholicism, once said that when he began attending Mass he thought, "Wow! It's like the Bible coming to life and dancing out on the centre stage. This is where I belong." In the liturgy, we take part in two important spiritual movements, expressed by the Greek words anamnesis and prolepsis. Anamnesis means: making present that which has gone before. We do this by fulfilling Jesus' command "Do this in memory of me", by which He is present among us on the altar of sacrifice in his Death and Resurrection. Prolepsis means: anticipating that which is to come. In every Mass we anticipate the eternal liturgy of Heaven, and claim our part in it among the Saints, please God. This is why regular Sunday Mass is so important. This is why I urge you to come every Sunday – so that you may be Saints in heaven! As St John says in our second reading today: "Beloved, we are God's children now; and what we will be has not yet appeared." (1 John 3:2)

All donations to the Royal British Legion. Along with the traditional paper poppies, we also have snap rulers, plastic rulers, wrist bands & keyring/dog harness plastic poppies. Donation only.

Admittance to Hospital?

When a Catholic is admitted to hospital, the family should ensure that the Catholic Chaplaincy is contacted so that appropriate support can be given. It is suggested that the patient have a note to give to hospital staff on admission, notifying staff that they are Catholic and would appreciate the Catholic Chaplaincy service. This could be followed up by a telephone call from the family to the ward to ensure the request is actioned. When a person is due to go into hospital, please also let your parish priest know so that he can administer the Sacrament of the Sick where appropriate.
